

Partnership Working

Flood Ex 2016

Water Management Consortium

Water Management Consortium

68 Pumping Stations

2,106 km Watercourse

125,711 Hectares

15 Councils

EA and Water Companies

Environmental Partnerships

Partnerships

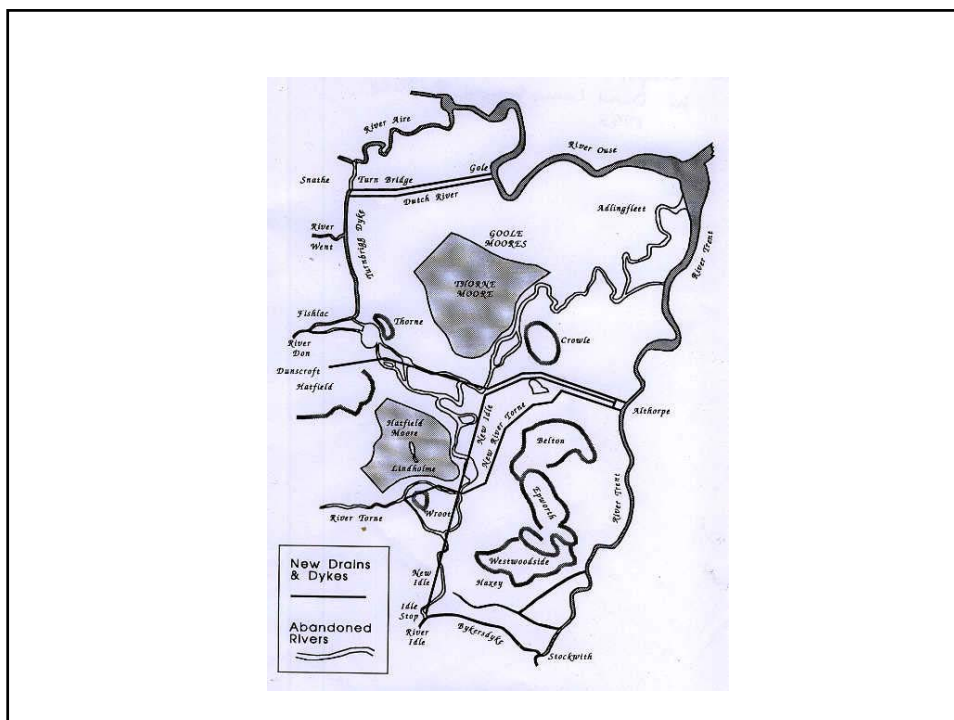

- Are they really necessary?
- Some common forms of partnerships
- What underpins effective partnerships?

Are They Really Necessary?

Are they new?

Cornelius Vermuyden
1595 - 1677

Are They Really Necessary?

- Annual flood damage costs - £1.1billion
- Households at risk - 330,000 rising to 570,000 by 2035

Climate Change Adaptation Sub-Committee

Common Forms of Partnerships

- Formal Partnerships
 - Public Sector Cooperation Agreement (PSCA)
 - Formal Local Partnerships, e.g.
 - Flood Risk and Drainage Management Framework
 - Common Works Programme

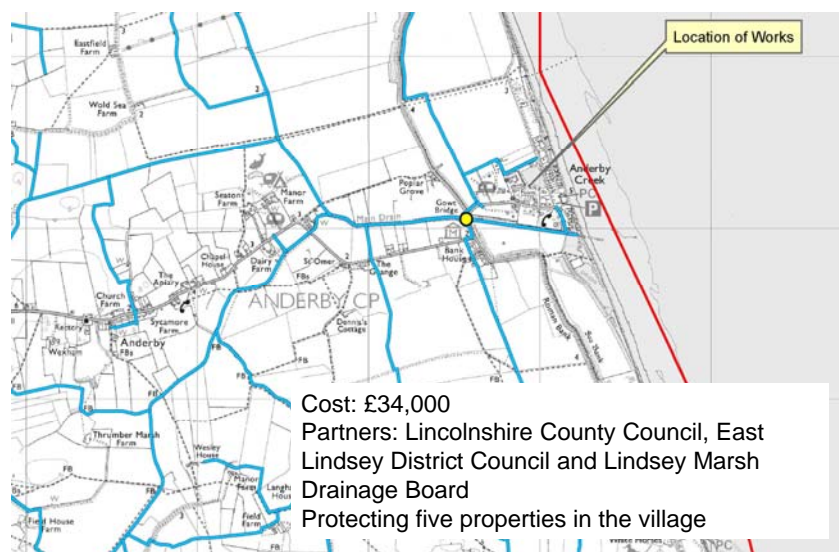

Some Partnership Schemes Delivered in Lincolnshire

Common Forms of Partnerships

- Formal Partnerships
 - Public Sector Cooperation Agreement (PSCA)
 - Formal Local Partnerships, e.g.
 - Flood Risk and Drainage Management Framework
 - Common Works Programme
- Informal Partnerships
 - Transient/short duration

Anderby Village Flood Relief Scheme

2016 Additional Flood Risk Funding

£750million

£350million allocated

“To make sure there are better flood protections in place in the future, we need local knowledge and tailored solutions - that’s why we have the Cumbria Flood partnership. By working with local authorities, the Environment Agency, land owners and local groups, we are looking at each of Cumbria’s river catchments to find the best answer for every area.”

“However beautiful the strategy, you should occasionally look at the results”

Winston Churchill

What Are Partnerships Really About?

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

- A common view / Common goal
- Balancing technology / Local knowledge
- Respect
- Trust

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

- A common view / Common goal
- Balancing technology / Local knowledge
- Respect
- Trust
- Experience / Courage

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

“Rules are for the obedience of the inexperienced and guidance of wise men”

Douglas Bader

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

- A common view / Common goal
- Balancing technology / Local knowledge
- Respect
- Trust
- Experience / Courage
- Selflessness

What Underpins Effective Partnerships?

“The whole is greater than the sum of the parts”

Aristotle

“It is no use saying,
'We are doing our best.'
You have got to succeed in doing what is necessary”

Winston Churchill

